MANUFACTURERS OF THE

Davis Patent Clapboard Machine.
The Davis Patent does away with Turning Works or Sipper, as it is provided with three sets of collars and sapping knives on the saw arbor, and saps the bolt at the same time it is sawing. The arbor extends across the Machine, and the saw is outside of the frame, which prevents the saw-dust from clogging the gearing; and, in changing saws, you simply take the nut off end of arbor, and remove collars and saw without disturbing arbor.
The saw runs 2200 revolutions per minute, and the Machine will cut from 5 to 6 M. per day; an average of 500 per day over the old style machine.

STATE NEWS.

Androscoggin.

Members of the Bates Theological School will occupy pulpits in this state as follows, during the coming vacation: A. W. Redfine at West Paris, Douglass Power at Hallowell, A. D. Dodge of the Senior Class, at Burnham, W. W. Carver at Orr's Island.

Mr. C. S. Libby, of Buena Vista, Colo., son of Rev. A. Libby, of Lewiston, and a graduate of Bates '76, at the recent State election was elected District Attorney for the Fourth Judicial District. Mr. Libby's nomination was made by acclamation, and he ran ahead of his ticket in several of the five counties over which his jurisdiction extends.

Jordan, Frost & Co., of Lewiston, have handled over three million shingles, this year. They have put electric lights into their planing mill and run after lighting-up time. Business was never more crushed with them than now. Carloads of lumber are being shipped to the eastern part of the State. Most of the shingles mentioned were received from Oldtown and Aroostook.

High honor has been justly paid to one of Auburn's most talented young ladies, Miss Stella Bicker, in the proffer of a position as preceptress at Mt. Carroll young ladies' Seminary in Illinois. She would have charge of twenty-two pianos and a very large number of pupils. The fact that she was recommended for the position by Prof. Sherwood, of Boston, is another testimony of her ability. She has not yet fully decided upon acceptance.

The Lewiston Journal says a peculiar circumstance connected with the execution of a will was discovered in Auburn, recently, in connection with the sad death of Mrs. McKenney, wife of Wm. A. McKenney, of that city. On the Saturday before her death she summoned her lawyer and made arrangements for her will, although apparently in the best of health. She requested the lawyer to return on Monday with the will, to have it executed. He proposed bringing it that day, but the lady thought the first of the week would be soon enough. The will was never executed. On the Monday morning Mrs. McKenney was seized with convulsions, remaining insensible until her death.

The following from the St. Louis Telegram is of interest to several Lewiston claimants for a slice of the billion dollar estate mentioned below:—"The Liverpool Weekly Post of recent date announces that by an act of Parliament, passed Aug 4th, the British government has decided to pay over to all the legal heirs of the Lawrence Townley estate their proper portion of the money. This estate amounts to the enormous sum of $800,000,000 and 400,000 acres of land. The estate would have been divided thirty-four years ago but through the false claim of one Talmy, it was thrown into chancery where it remained twenty-six years. The estate was inherited by four brothers of the Chase family, three of whom William, Aquilla and Thomas, came to this country before the Revolution."

Cumberland.

The Grand Trunk wharves, in Portland, present a busy scene just now, the first arrivals of freight for the season coming in rapidly.

Hezekiah Winslow, a well-known Portland lumber merchant, died Saturday, of paralysis. Mr. Winslow was for a long time manager of the Berlin Mills Lumber Company.

It is expected that the members of the Park street church, Portland, will resume regular religious services in their church under a new minister about the first of January next.

On the 10th day of November notice was given a Portland firm that certain parties doing business in another part of the State had lost $3,700 by a robbery. This story not being accepted as true by one of the Portland creditors, who intimated it to doubts of the yarn to the parties, $1,600 was promptly recovered, and the Portland creditors were informed that it had been secreted by one of the parties who was a sleep-walker. Detective Robert A. Davis was then put upon the case and soon discovered evidence of wrong doing by the parties, besides recovering the $3,700, which is now held in trust for the five Portland firms who are the creditors in the case.

Hancock.

The Herald reports: There were two severe accidents lately at Green's Landing, South Deer Isle. A little son of Geo. Merithew fell on some rocks and shattered an elbow so badly that it is like to be stiff; and a son of Thomas Eaton, about twelve years old, fell from an unfinished chamber to the bottom of the cellar, in his father's house, making a cut in the scalp about seven inches long and bruising him severely.

Mr. Isaac N. Mitchell, of Lewiston, who has been doing some fine landscape gardening on Mr. W. S. Gurnee's place, "Beaudesert," Bar Harbor, this season, returned with his family to Lewiston, Thursday. He expects to return to Bar Harbor, early next spring. At "Beaudesert," Mr. Mitchell has taken the ground from its crude, ledgy state, and made it one of the most beautiful places of any on the island, or in the State. The re-modeling of roads, and the neat arrangement of the many flower-beds, lawns, shrubs and trees are praised by all. A large amount of work has been done this fall in filling in loam and making beds where about two hundred trees are to be set next spring.

Kennebec.

A Young Men's Christian Association was formed in Winthrop, Nov. 14, says the Budget. The meeting then adjourned to Tuesday evening when the following officers were elected: A. G. H. Wood, president; John H. McIlroy, Fred D. Williams, C. E. Springer, A. J. Crowell, vice-presidents; Miss Maude M. McIlroy, secretary; E. A. Bailey, treasurer; A. J. Williams, C. L. Bailey, A. A. Stanley, H. C. Sinclair, prayer-meeting committee.

Knox.

On Saturday of last week, Miss Aggie Miller, of Thomaston, now teaching school at Tenant's Harbor, was arraigned before Judge Doe for cruelly beating Mamie Loud, a child nine years old, four days previously, for some petty offence. Large bruises and discolorations from the whipping were still plainly to be seen on the person of the child. Miss Miller was convicted and fined, says the Rockland Opinion.

Somerset.

D. D. Stuart, Esq., counsel for the petitioners, has given notice that he shall push every specification in his appeal from the decision of the Judge of Probate allowing the late ex-Gov. Coburn's will.

Skowhegan, says the Industrial Journal, may well be permitted to boast a little of being a lively town. It has a large woolen mill running night and day, a shoe factory that employs four hundred and fifty hands running on full time, two sash and blind factories, edge-tool, oilcloth and step-ladder manufactories; machine shop and foundry, pulp mill, sawmills, etc. Last year the citizens built a hundred new houses and this year they are building forty or more.

Washington.

Last Monday night, two men landed at Pike & Gillis's factory in Lubec and endeavored to entice the watchman out on the wharf. Failing in this they obtained entrance to the building, blowing out the lights, seized the watchman, who was wholly unprepared for such an attack, and dragged him over the floor and beat and kicked him unmercifully. The watchman finally succeeded in freeing himself and in getting his assailants out of doors. A reward has been offered for evidence that will lead to the arrest and conviction of the perpetrators of the outrage, says the Eastport Sentinel.

York.

The small boy playing with matches was the cause of a fire in a Saco house, Friday. A prompt alarm was given, and the fire put out with a slight loss.

The Biddeford Journal reports a narrow escape of George E. Sands, an operative in the dye houses of the York corporation, a day or two ago. He was riding upon an elevator in the mill, and had nearly reached the story to which he desired to get, when the lifting apparatus, a large hook attached to the elevator, which serves to hold it up, broke and the elevator suddenly dropped. Quick as a flash Mr. Sands caught hold of a beam near at hand and swung himself upon the floor safe and sound. Had he fallen he would have been almost certain to death.

Arresting the Wrong Man

UNHAPPY EXPERIENCE OF A COUNTRY DOCTOR IN NEW YORK.

"Talking about New York police courts," said a stout man with a round, red face and a large pair of spectacles to a Tribune reporter, "I was the unhappy victim of a curious case of mistaken identity in one of them a few weeks ago; though I think at the time the affair did not get into the papers." The speaker was a young physician whom the reporter had known in a Pennsylvania town, and the story he told was as follows:

"I had been taking a little trip up the Hudson with a friend of mine, and we were in New York for a few days before going home. We had just visited General Grant's tomb in Riverside Park, and were walking along one of the avenues in the upper part of the city. Suddenly a policeman tapped me on the shoulder. 'Somebody wants to see you back here,' he said.

"I thought he had made a mistake in paying for the lunch we had taken in a restaurant a square or two back. But the first thing I knew I was pushed into a little fancy store, and an excited woman came running forward crying, 'That's the man, that's the man and the lame man the other for my friend Lee's still leg and limping—that's his accomplice. I know them both.'

"Then she went on to say that the lame man had come into her store and offered a $10 bill to pay for some trifle, but that he wasn't changeable enough in the drawer, and she had to open the desk where she kept a roll of larger bills out. In a little while came in, and after looking at a good many things asked her to get a silk handkerchief which was hanging in the show-window. This took her some time to get and the moment she left the room she found the roll of bills gone.

"'When did this happen, madam?' I asked.

"'Last Saturday morning.'

"'But we were not near New York last Saturday.'

"'Oh, you can't get off that way,' she cried with great vehemence. 'I know you by your face. I know you by your clothes. I know you by your voice.'

"And in two minutes we were walking down town in charge of the policeman with an admiring crowd of men and boys at our heels. At the police station the woman told her story again and swore to it. My friend, of course, was dismissed by the sergeant, which he desired to do, when the lame man's pocketbook and money were taken from me, and I was put into a dirty basement cell, where the darkness was made hideous by the ravings of a drunken negro next door.

"Well, I suppose it was about three o'clock in the afternoon when I was taken to the police court. I had gotten back my money and my pocketbook, and felt pretty confident that I could make out my case. The judge was a rather young man, whose name I found out afterward was Duffy. I listened carefully while the woman told her story and I told mine. When I was through the judge said:

"'Well, young man, you haven't contradicted yourself yet. I think I know a criminal when I see him, and you don't look like one.'

"Just then a boy, who had come in, pushed forward and attracted the attention of the court. 'Here's his accomplice,' said the woman. 'I can swear to them both.'

"'This is very serious,' said the judge.

"'You told a pretty slick story,' drawled in the clerk, 'and you might have got off, if your blank fool of an accomplice hadn't come in.' 'But no one ever had a better chance of coming up the river than you have now,' said the judge. And he was about to make out a commitment to the Tombs when the judge interposed.

"'Hold on,' he said. 'I'll give this man another chance. Let him have a special hearing to-morrow morning.'

"I felt pretty blue. There I was without an acquaintance in the city, my friends two hundred miles off, unable to prove my own identity. I was put for the night into one of the dirty cells of the station-house. I wanted to send some telegrams, to have my supper brought in from a restaurant and to have my cell changed.

"'No,' said the keeper, 'it is against the rules.'

"I got my telegrams sent at about 25 cents a word; my supper cost five times the usual rates, and for $5 they gave me a cleaner cell. I did not sleep much, however. (The prospect of going to the Tombs the next afternoon was too much for me.)

"About six o'clock on Sunday morning a cab came thundering up to the station-house. A kick on the door and a volley of oaths brought the keeper on a run, in a few minutes my mother walked into the cell.

"He had been traveling all night and brought papers and letters to identify me and prove an alibi. At ten o'clock I came up for a second hearing. The woman stuck to her story as positively as ever. My case was good, of course, and the judge dismissed me.

"'This is an outrage,' he said. 'But I don't see that you have any remedy for it. The woman isn't worth anything, and you can't get damages.'

"'But you have an interesting experience,' said the reporter.

"'Oh, yes,' said the doctor dolefully. 'It was interesting, but it cost me $60.'"

The Gatling Gun Improved.

An improvement recently made by Colonel Buffington and L. F. Bruce, of the United States army, in the method of loading and firing the Gatling gun is destined to make a serious impression in military circles. The improvement lies in the invention and perfection of a new loading case, and an improved mouth-piece to the gun itself, in which the cartridges fall, to be subsequently shoved into each of the ten cylinders. Until now the charging of the cylinders was accomplished by means of a tin case, a crude and very unhandy combination. The objection to this case was that in order to insure the fall of the cartridge properly into the mouthpiece, each one had to be placed in position singly, requiring thus a most unnecessary delay. This objection is done away with in the new case, which is made of hammered brass, strong and substantial. It is built, as Mr. Bruce says, on exactly the principle of main track and switch. The lower part has but a single track, nearly to the middle, where the case widens sufficiently to hold two rows of cartridges. A slide, supported by a pivot, here separates the two rows. Such an inclination is given that only a certain number of cartridges can be held in that position in a double row; the slightest increase of pressure precipitates the cartridges down the single row.

The holding capacity of this new case is forty cartridges. The ease, simplicity, and rapidity with which the gun can be loaded is marvellous. Box after box of cartridges need only be placed above the case and allowed to drop, the automatic movement of the slide and its perfect operation preventing any clog or hitch whatever. The mouth-piece receives them, and here the new arrangement comes into play. A small wheel has been introduced with three grooves in the rim, the sides tapering to a certain angle, and only in one direction. As the cartridge falls into the mouth-piece it lies in one of the grooves, and the mechanism is such that it is impossible to have it fall otherwise than horizontally. The springs shove the cartridge into the cylinder and it is shut. The only thing now to prevent the almost infinite firing of these cartridges is the unpowerful imitation. The operator turns the crank; the rapidity of discharge of course follows the rapidity of this motion. From 300 to 1,000 is the average discharge a minute. With this new invention in the loading, the Gatling gun becomes one of the most murderous engines of modern warfare. Both kind of cartridges can be used, the long with the .45 calibre, 2.8 inches and the short 2.55 inches.

Trials are now being made to bring the sighting down from the perpendicular to the horizontal. It has already dropped five degrees from the perpendicular and the experiments will be continued until the horizontal is reached, after which the downward sighting will be tried. In this a quadrant is used, to which a level is attached, the whole affair being made firm to the frame of the gun.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 25, 1885.

Telephone experiments are going on in England by which lightships off the coast are brought within speaking distance of the main land.

A Washington despatch says that the Maine Senators are preparing to oppose the confirmation of Collector Chase on account of his connection with the Count-Out. That is as it should be.

While the papers are speculating as to the attitude of Republican Senators a Washington correspondent warns the President that he is not going to have plain sailing with the Senators of his own party.

The San Francisco Call complains that the President is so narrow minded that he was unable to grasp the fact that the Western States should have a representative at his council tables. There is Mr. Vilas but possibly he don't count in the West.

It is now said that the new Civil Service Commission) having already made a modification of the rules the result of which was to make a farce of competitive examination, next proposes a change that will remove the bar to the appointment of ex-Confederate soldiers. The new Commission was selected to harmonize the system with the Democratic idea of reform instead of promoting the work of reform itself and they seem to be eager to perform their part of the contract.

The Commercial publishes the following Washington despatch: "Senator Voorhees, who has just called on the President, predicts a grand change of policy shortly. Said he: 'These civil service reform dudes will be greatly shocked in about a month. Cleveland knows what he is about and don't you forget it.' Mr. Voorhees ought to know if anybody does." No one but a few professional Mugwumps ever supposed that there was any substance to the alleged reform policy of the President.

It is safe to say that Senator Vest and Congressman Springer are not pleased with the order fastened on the White House door announcing the President's rule of not receiving callers in his private room. The Senator recently stepped smilingly up to the door with a lot of lady friends whom he had told he would give a private audience with Mr. Cleveland. He colored to the roots of his hair, when he was pointed to the card and was forced to tell his friends that it was impossible. Congressman Springer of Illinois, came next day with a party of friends. He was served a like manner.

Nobody better than Mr. O'Connell himself can inform the WHIG how undeserved was the latter's fling at the Commercial this morning. Perhaps Mr. O'Connell had better do it, too.—Bangor Commercial.

Will little Mr. Bass please inform us just what he means by the above? Mr. O'Connell had nothing to do with the WHIG's criticism of the Commercial, which was based upon the contemptible course pursued by that sheet in the last campaign, therefore we are at loss to understand the treme dous threat contained in the last sentence. The WHIG is responsible for all of its utterances and if the pugnacious little Mr. Bass is not pleased with the same he should threaten the WHIG and not a private individual, as that course would not only be more manly but rather more sensible.

The democrats are trying times for the would-be Democratic boss in this city. The Fairfield Journal of last week not only referred to Mr. Bass in such pleasing terms as "political freak," but contains the following account of his ludicrous performance in the town of Winslow: "The post-office racket is fast assuming the appearance of a political volcano, with the Hon. J. P. Bass, of Bangor, as the crater, from which lightning, thunder and wind will belch forth in volumes big enough to drown all the small fry and taint the whole world with sulphurous fumes. Thursday a peppery little chap appeared among the faithful and announced himself as the great and only Hon. J. P. Bass, of the Bangor Commercial, and as having a cousin, formerly a law partner of Cleveland. It was thought a cure-all for Democratic bruises had been found. Mr. Bass interviewed all hands and held a reception at the Elmwood, Waterville, to which the faithful from Winslow swarmed, and Mr. Bass was supremely happy as grand arbitrator to the unterrified Democracy of Kennebec county, "sitting in state" on Chairman Brown's stamping ground. The result is unknown, but until the great uncertainty, politically, that now hangs over our village is settled, all business will be suspended, stores closed, churning neglected, cows unmilked, cider refuse to work, and the water in the Sebasticook has actually got up his back, and Waterville bay is threatening to overflow our little hamlet."

Hon. Samuel Fessenden, of Stamford, Conn., Secretary of the Republican National Committee, was in New York last week. He was seen at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, where he said in answer to the inquiries of a Tribune reporter: "I was very much disappointed at the result in New York. But I have got this satisfaction out of it: that the ground is being mopped with the Mugwumps since the election. There isn't a Blaine man anywhere who does not take comfort in that fact. It is all nonsense to say, though, that any Blaine men wanted the ticket defeated. The very contrary is true in its strongest sense. But if we have got to be the under dog in the fight, we adhere to the old doctrine that misery loves company, and the Mugwumps misery in this instance overshadows ours."

"What about 1888?"

"It is three years off. If the Republican nominating convention was to be held to-day, the old ticket would be nominated by acclamation. What will be the situation when the convention does come off no man can tell. I wrote to Mr. Blaine only a day or two ago telling him that unless the outlook should change he must be prepared again to face victory or defeat. He has a hold on the masses of the Republican party that is simply marvellous. His defeat under the circumstances only strengthened that hold. He won the fight. It was lost, but he did not use it. He can take more men out of the Democratic party to-day than any Republican I know. The logic of events may make him the most available man for the next contest. If they do, he will certainly be nominated. In any case his friends will have something to say as to the nomination that is made."

Recent movements among the German Democratic voters of Illinois indicate that a large number of them who left the Republican party a few years ago design to return to it in the near future.

Secretary Bayard is getting restive under the severe criticisms that are heaped upon him, and says some of the appointments for which he has been censured were "dumped down on his table by the President." It is not all surprising that Mr. Bayard objects to being used as a shield for the President, and if he decides to strike back there are lively times ahead.

It does not seem at all improbable that so delicate an instrument as the mariner's compass would be affected by the local propuction of electricity for the purpose of lighting ships, and the matter has recently engaged the attention of nautical writers, who give instances where very serious deviations have been directly traced to such a cause. The matter is so important, involving as it does the safety of ocean voyagers, that it should not be allowed to remain a matter of theory or speculation.

It is told of Josh Billings that once tramping with a yellow dog as his companion, he fell among some Yale boys in a Connecticut village hotel. They took him for a farmer from way-back, and set out to have some fun with him. On their inquiring with affected interest after the health of his wife and children, Josh, with counterfeited simplicity, gave them a graphic account of his family and farm. "Of course you belong to the church?" asked one of the boys. "Yes, the Lord be praised, and my father and grandfather before me." "Now, I suppose you would not tell a lie," said one of the students. "Not for the world." "What will you take for that dog?" pointing to Josh's cur, which was crouching beneath his chair. "I won't take $20 for that dog." "Twenty dollars! Why, he is not worth 20 cents." "I assure you I would not take $20 for him." "Come, my friend," said the student, who with his companions, was bent on having some fun with the old man, "now, you say you won't tell a lie for the world. Let me see if you will not do it for $20. I'll give you $20 for your dog." "I'll not take it." "You will not? Here! let me see if this will not tempt you to a lie," added the student, producing a small bag of half dollars, which he built up in small piles on the table. Josh was sitting by the table, with his hat in his hand, apparently unconcerned. "There," added the student, "there are $20, all in silver. I will give you that for the animal." Josh quietly raised his hat to the edge of the table, and, as quick as thought scraped all the money into it except one half dollar, and then exclaimed: "I won't take your $20! Nineteen and a half is as much as that dog is worth. He is your property!"

MR. VILAS' EXPLANATION.

ATTEMPTING TO DEFEND HIS POLICY.—AN AUTHORIZED STATEMENT THAT FAILS TO MEET THE FACTS.

[Washington Correspondence of the Tribune.]

Proof slips were distributed last night of what purported to be a statement from the Postmaster General in defense of his policy regarding the transportation of foreign mails. It was given out that the publication was "not official, but authorized," in other words, it had been prepared with the knowledge and was furnished for publication with the consent of Mr. Vilas. At the last session of Congress a law was passed directing the Postmaster General to advertise for proposals to carry the foreign mails and to let contracts to the lowest bidders at a rate not to exceed fifty cents a nautical mile. Mr. Vilas did not advertise for proposals, and did not let any contracts. When the steamship companies inquired why he did not obey this law, he replied that the appropriation of $400,000 was not sufficient to pay for the service at the rate of fifty cents a mile.

The steamship companies then offered to do the service for 20 cents, so as to bring the services within the amount of the appropriation. Mr. Vilas refused to pay this amount, but offered 2½ cents a letter. The steamship companies running upon short routes were willing to accept this compensation, but those having lines to Australia, China, Brazil, Venezuela and other distant countries directed on the ground that it was unfair to ask them to carry a letter from 4,000 to 8,000 miles for the same price that was paid another company for carrying a letter ninety miles. Finally all the American companies decided to refuse to carry the mails for such compensation, when upon the Postmaster General arranged to forward the mails by foreign steamers, by which are known as ocean tramps, by sailing vessels, sailing smacks and such other means of conveyance as he could secure.

In defence of his action the Postmaster General advances some singular propositions. In the first place he says that "the law contained no mandate. The Postmaster General was left to enforce or ignore it." This is the first time, perhaps, that such a decision has been made! General Vilas brings from Wisconsin an entirely new doctrine, that an official can suspend or ignore a law of Congress if he sees fit. The second point that Mr. Vilas makes is that "if, in his judgment he saw fit to habilitate the law he then became subject to the stipulation that the contracts contemplated therein should be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder after genuine competition," and he goes on to explain that there was and could be no competition because every one of the steamship lines operated under the American flag is a "monopoly." This is true, unfortunately. There is only one line to Australia or China, or Brazil, or Central America. Therefore, Mr. Vilas would not ask for proposals because there could not be "genuine competition."

He says that the Government was at the mercy of these monopolies who could have charged whatever they pleased. But the monopolies offered to do the service for two-fifths of the amount fixed by Congress as a fair compensation, and less than one-third the amount paid to foreign steamers for carrying the mails between New York and Europe. At the 50 cents rate allowed in the act this would call for $1,025,000—two and a half times the whole amount appropriated for the purpose. Argument runs into a cul de sac, continues Mr. Vilas; "the thing was out of the question. In order to execute the law it was necessary to violate the law." But he stops here. He does not explain that the steamship companies, as has been stated, repeatedly offered to help him out of the dilemma. In his statement Mr. Vilas is very careful not to mention this fact.

After thus discussing the legal features of the controversy, Mr. Vilas proceeds to set forth the great advantages enjoyed by the commercial interests of the country from the result of what he calls "the genuine and serious vigilance" with which he "explored the situation in which he was left by the refusal of the steamship companies to carry the mails." He first describes the improvement in the service between the United States and Central America, and says that where, as formerly, it required eighteen days and twenty hours to send a letter from San Francisco to Panama, it can now be sent by way of New Orleans in nine days. This is true; but Mr. Vilas fails to state that formerly the mail steamers left San Francisco every ten days and now they leave New Orleans only once in thirty days, which is not regarded by the merchants as a great improvement. Mr. Vilas also says that the service with Costa Rica and other Central American countries is much improved. The Costa Rica Charge d'Affaires at Washington does not agree with him. This gentleman says that the mails now leave for Costa Rica once a month, whereas they formerly left three times a month, and that the passage now requires twenty-four days where it formerly required only ten days. Senor Gonzales also adds that he has lost important despatches intrusted to the mails recently, something that never occurred before Mr. Vilas introduced his improvements. Mr. Vilas is significantly silent regarding the other Central American countries, as he may well be.

With regard to the service with the Asiatic countries Mr. Vilas says: "It has been as reliable and efficient as it ever was," but here he also significantly fails to enter into the details of one of the most shameful and humiliating performances that a great Government was ever detected in. When the Pacific steamers refused to take the mails at the compensation that he offered, Mr. Vilas attempted to smuggle them aboard and send them to China as passengers' baggage. He was detected in the attempt to swindle the company in this manner. The mails were thrown out upon the dock and the steamer went off without them. These mails and those which followed were sent to China and Japan by way of England and the Suez Canal. In these mails were the instructions of the Government of the United States to the Legation at Pekin regarding the outrages upon Chinamen in Wyoming and they have not reached our Minister there yet. The Chinese Minister here sent his version of the affair by special messenger on the Pacific mail steamer, and it reached Pekin in eighteen days, while Mr. Bayard's despatches will be from sixty to seventy days in reaching China. The mails for Australia and New Zealand were also sent by way of the Suez Canal for awhile, but, within a few days a new company has been organized which will carry the mails to those Islands under the English flag, Mr. Vilas, having succeeded in driving the American companies off the ocean.

Mr. Vilas says that "it is utterly and unqualifiedly false that the mail service of the country has lost anything by the Postmaster General's action." This is a question at issue between him and the merchants who are engaged in trade with foreign countries, and who unfortunately, have good reason to differ with him on this proposition.

Mr. Vilas says that "the pen was the beginning of commerce which the Postmaster General has no right to consider." The foreign mail service is the only branch of the Post Office Department that is self-sustaining. The Government receives over $2,000,000 a year for foreign postage and pays about $350,000 for the transportation of the mails for which this postage is charged. The railway mail service is always operated at a loss to the Government, and is supposed to be maintained for "the benefit of commerce," while the Star Route service, which covers all the transportation other than by railway, costs more money every year than the Government has received from it for half a century.

If Mr. Vilas has no right to consider the benefiting of commerce, every post route in the country ought to be abandoned.

THE GOVERNOR AND COUNCIL.

Blaney's Sentence Commuted to Imprisonment for Life.

Mrs. Barrows Reprieved Till April, 1887.

AUGUSTA, Nov. 24. This forenoon the Governor and Council gave another hearing to the petitioners for the commutation of the death sentence of Mary E. Barrows, the Kittery murderess, to imprisonment for life, Judge Joseph W. Symonds of Portland, appearing for the petitioners and delivering an eloquent appeal for mercy, occupying nearly two hours. He stated that he came before the Council on public and not personal grounds, and that Mrs. Barrows herself did not even know that he was pleading in her favor. In a clear and terse manner he demonstrated to the board that they possessed the pardoning power; why and where they should use it, and that there was less danger from an abuse of this power than from its non-operation.

Efficient authorities were cited sustaining his position. Judge Symonds said that at the most Mrs Barrows was only a principal in the second degree: that there was a distinct difference between the one who is accessory after the fact and one whose hand does not commit the murder; that no state in which imposes the first degree can make it so; that if clemency is granted to Oscar E. Blaney, as is believed it must be, then can this board allow Mrs. Barrows to suffer a higher penalty than the principal in the crime?

He held that Mrs. Blaney, the wife of Oscar, was connected with the crime and that Oscar by turning State's evidence, expected to obtain mercy for himself and place his wife out of danger; that there was not one atom of proof to show that Mrs. Barrows was knowing to or actuated Blaney to shoot at Barrows the first time, near the barn; that when she heard the pistol shots, and saw her husband crawl towards the house, she fled to her son-in-law's house, eventually thinking it was he who did the shooting on account of a difficulty he had had with Barrows; that in her terror and fright she rushed to Blaney and asked him to finish Barrows. He continued that if all the facts of the married life of Mr. and Mrs. Barrows had come to the surface, of all trouble which they had had, she would never have been convicted of murder in the first degree. The matter was tabled by the Council.

The Decision of the Governor and Council.

This evening the Governor and Council, in Executive session, voted to extend clemency to the Kittery murderers. Oscar E. Blaney's sentence was commuted from death to imprisonment for life, on the ground that having given evidence for the State he is entitled to receive mercy. The execution of Mrs. Mary E. Barrows' sentence was suspended till the third Friday in April, 1887. Blaney and Mrs. Barrows were to have been hung in December. Another legislature will convene before the reprieve of the latter expires.

The Bath Special Constable Case.

The Bath special constable case was again on the tapis in the Council Chamber this afternoon and many citizens were present from that city, where there is much division over the matter. Francis Adams, Esq., and Joseph M. Trott appeared for the petitioners and William E. Hogan, Esq., for J. W. Wakefield, Mayor of Bath. The question came up as to the charges against James Bailey, whom petitioners desire to have appointed when City Marshal. Mr. Trott read an affidavit from Eben E. Mayberry, formerly of Bath, to show that he never paid Bailey $20, or any other sum for being easy with him when Marshal, and two others from persons present at the interview between Messrs Wakefield and Bailey, in which the former charged the latter with receiving money for "letting up" on liquor sellers, the latter making a square denial. Mr. Bailey was called and sworn, testifying that he never received money from Mayberry other than lock up fees while Marshal.

Mr. Hogan, counsel for the remonstrants, stated that the question at issue to-day had been changed from whether or not a constable shall be appointed, to a question of veracity. Mr. Wakefield and his friends do not object to the appointment of a State constable, but to the appointment of James Bailey. C. T. Hooper being called, testified that when Judge Dickerson was on the bench several years ago, James Bailey had approached a jury regarding a verdict and the Judge reprimanded him for perjury and abusing a jury and said if the Grand Jury was present he would have him indicted for the same. Silas Adams of Bowdoinham, corroborated the above. J. W. Wakefield denied that he asked Mr. Bailey to modify his enforcement of the liquor law.

The affidavits of Mr. Wakefield, General T. W. Hyde, Mr. Wm. Rodgers, of Bath, John W. Bailou, Sheriff of Sagadahoc County, George A. Smith, a former clerk of the Sagadahoc House, C. H. Smith, Philemon Brown, of Lowell, Mass., and John Gilmore were presented, going to show that Eben B. Mayberry had paid Bailey money while landlord of the Sagadahoc House. The counsel, Mr. Hogan, stated that he was a member of the committee of the City Council of Bath, appointed to examine the charges against Mr. Bailey, and that they made an easy report, that it might not result in sending both Bailey and Mayberry to State Prison. Mr. Bailey being recalled testified to the searching of the Sagadahoc House four times and finding liquor there.

In closing the case Governor Robie stated that the names of Wm. H. Mains, of Bath, and Charles S. Hodges, of Richmond, had been named to him as good men for the place. The petitioners objected to Mr. Mains, but pronounced Mr. Nelson Ham as satisfactory to them.

Committee to Examine the Treasurer's Accounts.

A GREAT TIDAL WAVE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24. Never before has such a high tide rolled in upon the city and incalculable damage has been done along the water front. At 10 o'clock when the tide was at its full, the water was said to be nearly three feet higher than it had ever been known before. The bridges in the ferry houses on the North River were tilted up by the tide to an angle of 31 degrees. Passengers in many cases had to be hoisted up on the bridge. All the basement saloons and stores along the water front were from one to four feet deep in water.

Cellars Deep with Water.

Many of the cellars on the streets running up from the ferries were being pumped out and were deep with water which percolated through the walls and floors. On Vessey street between Washington and West business was suspended on account of the water flooding the cellars and ground floors of the business houses. Everett's Hotel and dining rooms adjoining floor submerged by over two feet of water.

The tide rushed in at an early hour this morning and inundated the ferry houses and waiting rooms of the Erie Railroad depot. The horses of the teams going on and off the boats were body deep in water.

Submerged the Railway Tracks.

Everywhere, boxes, barrels and planks were floating about. The scene was one of great discomfort and confusion. The tide rolled into the New Market Bay and submerged the salt meadows along the Passaic and Hackensack rivers.

Many oyster boats and other small river craft were floated from their moorings, and were driven ashore on the land banks.

Overflowing the Dyked Banks

the flood swept away hundreds of tons of stacked hay and drifted it to the uplands. At West Bergen many of the factories along the water edge were completely surrounded with water. The damage done is estimated to be very great.

Docks and Streets Under Water.

HUNTER'S POINT, L. I., Nov. 24. The tide has risen to an extraordinary height, water to the depth of several feet having covered the docks and street. Wagons cannot get aboard the ferry boats. The lower parts of Astoria and Rosenwald are also flooded. The meadows at Flushing are under water and the railroad trestle is covered in places.

High Tide at Providence.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 24. There was a very high tide at Newport last night and many wharves were flooded. There is a heavy sea outside and the surf is magnificent. The wind is freshening and a higher tide still is feared to-night.

Highest Tide Ever Known.

ROCKAWAY BEACH, L. I., Nov. 24. The highest tide ever known here is running this morning. Some portions of the beach are entirely submerged. It is feared that Curley's large pavilion will go when the tide goes out. In Jamaica Bay the water has been to the top of the railroad trestle and it is feared that some of the club houses will be carried away.

At Fall River.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Nov. 24. An earthquake wave in the bay at 9.30, this morning, caused the tide to rise three feet above mean high water mark. No damage is reported.

The Flood in Atlantic City.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 24. The northeast gale of the past two days drove in very high tides and the tide this morning is the highest for years. The damage to property is considerable. Much of the board walk along the ocean front is washed away and the railroad tracks are washed out. Many of the streets are flooded and boats are being used to convey residents up and down some of the streets.

Yesterday was a big market day, the merchants on the square saying that they never remembered of seeing such a crowd two days before Thanksgiving. Turkeys sold from fifteen to eighteen cents. Some men asked twenty cents for fine lots, but were unable to find a purchaser. Chickens sold from ten to twelve cents.

The Kennebec Journal says: Citizens of Augusta will be visited very soon, probably it is said, to ascertain how many people they can entertain during reunion week. It is expected there will be 1500 strangers in the city. All the rooms at the Augusta House with the exception of eight or ten have been engaged.

The members of Union Hose Company, had a ball last evening, sold 450 tickets for their ball which occurs to-night at Music Hall. One man, Philip Frey, sold 113. Andrews' full orchestra will furnish the music this evening and supper will be served at the Bangor House. There is a prospect of a very large attendance.

We are requested to state that the boys between the ages of six and fourteen years of age who desire to avail themselves of the course of fifteen lessons to be given in the gymnasium of the Young Men's Christian Association are invited to meet in the Association gymnasium this afternoon for their first lesson. The price will be one dollar for the course.

The gospel meetings which are being held at the Columbia street church, are fast increasing in interest. Several persons rise for prayers each evening. The meetings are being conducted by Rev. G. B. Disley, the pastor of the church, and Rev. J. H. Higgins, the evangelist. They are largely attended and will undoubtedly be productive of much good.

Mr. A. W. Benson, the Maine Central ticket agent, received cash for a ticket yesterday from Mrs. E. S. Arey of Brooklyn, N. Y., who wishes to join his California party which is advertised in the WHIG to leave here next Monday. He also received an inquiry from a lady in Cobourg, a place west of Montreal, about the parties. This shows what extensive advertising will do.

The seventy-five hour go-as-you-please race commences this evening in Norombega Hall and will probably be a close and exciting contests. Nearly all of the men entered will start. Mr. J. H. Gillespie, the manager, will act as referee and manage all the details of the race itself, while the representatives of the men will look out for the other business arrangements.

The annual meeting of the Bangor and Bar Harbor Steamboat Company occurred yesterday afternoon at the office of Laughton & Clergue. The following Directors were elected: Dr. Sumner Laughton, Capt. S. H. Barbour, Col. F. D. Pullen, Capt. Noah Emery and Dr. E. M. Field. Dr. Sumner Laughton was elected President, Capt. S. H. Barbour Treasurer, and Col. F. D. Pullen Secretary. No other business of interest to the public was transacted.

One of the most pleasant entertainments of the season will be given in Music Hall, Thanksgiving night, by the Happy Hour Association connected with the Universalist Society. It will consist of solos, duetts and trios and the following talent will participate: Mrs. W. F. Shaw, Miss Alice Newhall and Messrs. J. H. Haynes, M. H. Andrews, R. B. Hall and George Cushing. A dance will follow the entertainment. Caterer Jacques is to serve refreshments in the gallery during the evening.

Mr. Hezekiah Winslow, who will be remembered by some of our old citizens, died at his residence in Portland last Sunday at the age of seventy-four years. Mr. Winslow came to this city in 1835 and was associated in general trade and in the lumber business with the late General S. P. Strickland. He was compelled to leave here in 1845 on account of his health, and has since resided in Portland. Previous to residing in this city he was in trade at Dixmont, and was then a deputy sheriff for Penobscot County.

BADLY SCALDED. Engineer T. J. Ferry of the night freight train between Vanceboro and this city, met with quite a severe accident in the early hours of yesterday morning. As he was approaching this city and running his train at full speed, the gauge cock on the locomotive blew off. At the time, the engineer, fireman and head brakeman were in the cab. The two latter sought refuge in the tender, but the engineer remained at his post in the cab and was very badly scalded on his arms and shoulders. The steam was about ten minutes in blowing off. Mr. Ferry will be obliged to "lay off" several weeks on account of his injury.

THE CHAUTAUQUAN CIRCLE met on Monday evening last in the vestry of Hammond Street Church. The lesson on the topography of Ancient Rome having been conducted by the vice president, Rev. T. E. Bushfield, was followed by an essay on Rome, by Miss Thompson. The first four books of Cæsar's commentaries on the Gallic wars were next considered by the class, after which the following programme was presented: Essay on Bryant, by Miss Burr; reading of "Thanatopsis," by Miss Littlefield; violin solo, by Miss Staples; quotations from Bryant, by the class; song, by Mr. Morton; paper, by Mrs. Rowe, on "New England Country Life in Bryant's Boyhood;" reading, by Mrs. Dowst; guitar solo, by Miss Ware; reading, by Miss Stacy.

LECTURE LAST EVENING. An audience which crowded the large vestry to overflowing assembled at the Central Church last evening to listen to the very interesting lecture by Mrs. Abba Goold Woolson. Shortly after eight o'clock the assemblage was called to order, and Rev. George W. Field, pastor of the church, in very appropriate and pleasant remarks introduced the speaker of the evening. Mrs. Woolson commenced by announcing as her subject "Ten Days in Africa." She referred to sailing out of the Strait of Gibraltar and landing at the city of Tangier in Morocco, with a small party. Mrs. Woolson dwelled at some length upon the appearance of the people, their characteristics, and their manners and customs. She also described the city in an interesting way, devoting the whole of her remarks to the consideration of these to her. The lecturer held the most earnest attention of her hearers for one and one-half hours, and at the close the hearty commendation was given her address. The last course of lectures to be given by the Central Club will comprise fifteen.

There will be a social dancing party this evening at Acadian Hall. Music will be furnished by Abbott and Jones.

A boy eight years of age and ragged for St John came through from Gardiner on yesterday afternoon's train. He was in charge of Conductor Whitney and while he was hunting up the conductor of the eastern train the little fellow strayed away and got left. Conductor Whitney kindly took him to the Bangor House and kept him over night and will put him aboard the St. John train this morning.

PRIVATE GERMAN. The first in the series of private Germans under the management of Messrs. F. H. Parkhurst and H. M. Plummer, occurred at Music Hall last evening, and if those that are to follow prove as enjoyable as did the initial number the course will undoubtedly be reckoned among the pleasantest events of the dancing season. The favors were very handsome and appropriate, having been selected with excellent judgment and were artistically arranged on a bright background in the form of "Nov. 24," he effect under the electric light being both pleasing and unique. The figures were admirably arranged and gracefully led by the managers, Mr. George Cushing furnishing the music on the piano. There was a thoroughly social party in attendance and the ladies as usual looked charmingly in their bright costumes. The second German occurs December 7th.

BANGOR LODGE, NO. 8, I. O. O. F.

A Fine New Odd Fellows Lodge Successfully Instituted in this City Last Evening—A Banquet and Speeches.

Bangor Lodge, No. 8, I. O. O. F., was instituted at Odd Fellows Hall, in this city, last evening, under the most auspicious circumstances by Grand Master R. B. Capen, of Augusta, assisted by the following Grand Officers: Freeman T. Morrill, Portland, Deputy Grand Master; George W. Goss, Lewiston, Grand Warden; Joshua Davis, Portland, Grand Secretary, and M. C. Blackwell, Augusta, Grand Marshal. The names of the thirty-two charter members of the organization have already been published in the WHIG, and it will suffice to say that they elected and instalted the following officers: N. G., C. J. Wardley; V. G., G. B. Goodale; R. S. A. J. Merrill; P. S., C. B. Patten; T., H. A. Williams; W., J. M. Hill; C., C. H. Adams; I. G., L. G. Bragdon; O. G., C. A. Bielhen; R. S. N. G., T. H. Arnold; L. S. N. G., J. A. Boardman; R. S. V. G., A. W. Emery; L. S. V. G., F. T. Thompson; R. S. S., John Patten; L. S. S., F. W. Farnham; Trustees, W. A. Bragg, J. A. Boardman, E. F. Shaw.

After the installation twenty-eight propositions for membership were received and accepted. The grand officers fully exemplified the secret work of the order. The proceedings in the lodge room being over, the whole company adjourned to the banquet hall, where a splendid spread was given under the direction of such well known "caterers" as Messrs. E. C. Dunforth, O. P. Frost, Henry Thomas and others equally efficient. It is necessary to state that every man did ample justice to the repast.

After it was concluded the smokers present lighted cigars and speaking commenced, Noble Grand Wardley presiding. Deputy Grand Master Merrill, of Portland, was first called up and said it gave him much pleasure to be present and assist in the institution of a new lodge. He thought that the Grand Master had given enough good advice and he would speak only of the investigating and visiting committee. He proceeded to give their duties in an interesting manner. Grand Warden Goss spoke upon the importance of giving the new initiate a good impression of the work. He believed in a strict adherence to ritual. Grand Secretary Davis said that he was pleased to notice that the new lodge had placed itself on a firm financial basis. Said that the dues and benefits had been fixed at the proper figures. He spoke at length upon the choice of members. Grand Chief Patriarch Higgins, of Portland, hoped that the new lodge would profit by the good advice which had been given. He glad that it was instituted and hoped that the three organizations would reach all classes in the community.

Further brief remarks were made upon invitation by Messrs. F. M. Laughton, A. B. Farnham, George S. Hall, W. A. Bragg, G. B. Goodale and H. A. Williams of Bangor Lodge; Grand Representative E. W. Conant, of Old Town; Charles Meager and Noble Grand Spratt, of Corinthian Lodge, of Corinth; H. A. Thomas and Mr. Ward, of Penobscot Lodge, Bangor, representatives of Minerva Lodge, Lincoln and Lejok Lodge, Ellsworth, Noble Grand Nickerson, of Wildey Lodge, Brewer; Messrs Soule and Foster, of Dirigo Lodge, Milo; Mr. J. F. Gould, of Tarratine Lodge, Old Town; Noble Grand Sumner Dunton, of Etna; Noble Grand Snow, of Eureka Lodge, Orrington. During the evening Grand Warden Goss called upon Noble Grand Wardley for remarks and a very fitting response was made.

Grand Master Capen was one of the last speakers of the evening. He cordially thanked the Odd Fellows present for their generous treatment of him since he had been in office. He was very proud of the Bangor Lodge and of the part he had taken in instituting it. The lodge had started out right and will do its work well. It had his best wishes and would render it all the assistance in his power, and this wanever it was required.

At an early hour in the morning the motion to adjourn was carried and the company dispersed after singing. The new lodge promises to be a fine organization, and will probably do good work. We wish it much success and are glad to know that Bangor can support three such excellent Odd Fellows' Lodges.

MEMORIAL WINDOWS

To be Placed in the Hammond Street Church.

The two handsome memorial windows which are to be placed in the Hammond street church, have arrived in the city. Mr Edwin Ford of Boston, who designed them, together with workmen to put them in position, arrived here last evening, and from the former gentleman we have obtained a few facts in regard to the windows and what they are designed to represent which may be of interest to some of our readers. They were made at the works of Mr. E. P. Treadwell of Boston, whom Mr. Ford represents and will occupy the upper third of the window in the church nearest the pulpit on the High street side. They represent the Resurrection, or the angels at the sepulchre. The angel in female form bears lilies aloft, which is typical of compassion, while that in male form is typical of strength.

The windows are glass mosaics, but very little paint having been used in their construction. Hence the colors of the glass are not transmitted to other objects. Where paint is not used more depth and greater brilliancy of color is obtained. The predominating color of the glass is a beautiful shade of red. The robes of the angels are white, making a striking effect against their background. Over the pulpit in the church at present is a window representing the Ascension, and it is designed to have additional ones put in representing the important scenes in the life of Christ from the Nativity to the Resurrection, the latter being the important scene next preceding the Ascension. As we have before stated the windows were given as a Thanksgiving offering by Mrs. Gardner B. Perry of Buenos Ayres, South America, in memory of her father and mother, Rev. Richard Woodhull and Mrs. Sarah Forbes Woodhull, late of this city. They will be placed in position to-day and appropriate services will be held in the church next Sunday.

MAINE STATE COLLEGE.

Annual Meeting of the Board of Trustees.

The annual meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Maine State College occurred at the college yesterday, the following members being present: Hon. Lyndon Oak, Garland; Wm. Hayes, Esq., Waterville; Hon. Z. A. Gilbert, North Greene; Hon. L. S. Moore, Limerick; Hon. D. H. Hill, Mount Vernon; Hon. A. M. Robinson, Dover; Hon. R. S. Parkhurst, Mayville; Capt. Charles W. Keyes, Farmington. The only member absent was Gen. R. B. Shepherd, Skowhegan. The Trustees elected the following officers: President, Hon. Lyndon Oak; Secretary, Wm. T. Haines; Treasurer, J. Fred Webster, Orono; Executive Committee, Hon. Lyndon Oak, Hon. A. M. Robinson, and Wm. T. Haines, Esq.; Farm Committee, Hon. D. H. Thing, Hon. Z. A. Gilbert and Hon. E. E. Parkhurst.

The trustees found everything about the farm and buildings in the usual fine condition. They were especially pleased with the improvement made in the mechanical engineering department, so far as the forge, vise and carpentry work is concerned. The resignation of Mr. J. E. Johnson, the present steward of the college, was accepted. His successor has not yet been selected, but a committee has been appointed to make such selection. The trustees voted to continue the work of furnishing the buildings with a system of water works, they having already contracted with Mr. M. G. Trask, of this city, to sink an artesian well on the grounds. During the meeting the annual report of the President and members of the Faculty were presented. The session was unusually pleasant and the trustees felt much gratified with the work which had been done during the past year.

AMUSEMENTS.

The Fashions.

[New York Evening Post.]

Rose is to be one of the favor te colors for elegant evening wear this winter. These are exquisite new shades of this color, both pale and decided in hue, that are becoming to both fair and dark women.

Pearl-white China crape is announced as the very height of fashion in Paris. This extremely elegant fabric is richly decorated with silk embroidery and trimmings of costly lace. It is made up also with contrasting fabrics, but is has the most charming effect combined with satin of the same tint.

Among the magnificent importations of wraps designed for every occasion, from the bewitching opera cloaks of tinted plush trimmed with color ars and falling frills of duchesse lace, to the rain cloaks of Scotch tweed, buttoned from chin to skirt hem, are shown some elegant novelties in riding mantles. These long, luxurious wraps are cut in the old French surtout fashion and made of what is called "Orientalt" plush, the fabric showing stripes of superb deep colors in olive, wine, and gold. The garments cover the dress entirely, and are warmly lined. A deep collar and cuffs of plain plush are usually added, matching one of the colors of the stripe. Others are trimmed with wide bands of natural beaver.

One of the new French polonaise forms a very useful model in modernizing a last year's toilet. This has a polonaise front, the sides lengthening into panels, and the back a pointed bodice only, a sash forming the drapery over the plain underskirt. This model is made very dressy when formed of velvet for the polonaise with cashmere striped velvet for the sash, with vest front to match.

Short plastrons with velvet bretelles beyond are as frequently seen on new costumes as the long popular vests. The high collar matches the plastron, and often there is a second collar turning down to match the revers.

"J. H. W." writes from Cincinnati, Ohio, asking what is stylish and suitable in dressy black wool fabrics for a lady not in mourning, but preferring black to colors. Among the lengthy list of black materials are finely-woven, all-wool tricots and armures which are made up very effectively this season with striped velvets or with black moire Franaise. There is also quite a furore for fine black goods dotted with tiny raised tufts of a silky texture, bouretteand frise materials, which are made up with outside jackets en suite, trimmed with bands of marabout, astrakhan, or fur. Cashmere still holds its favor among stylish fabrics in black, these always giving the wearer full value for the money invested. Wide jet passementeries, and black satin surah, are popular trimmings for cashmere this season. Dotted bisonne cloths, Persian cloth in basket and canvas effects, are all very popular, and in addition, are brought out exceedingly fine. Ottoman cords, equal in effect to gros grain, lustreless silks, and far cheaper because these goods are double width thus requiring only half the quantity necessary in silk. Drap d'Alma or imperial serge drap de dame and Armozine are other stylish black goods not as novel as the rough camel's hair boucle, frise, and bourette goods, but very popular with a large class of ladies. They form elegant and serviceable dresses, and can be made to look very richly by the addition of handsome jet trimmings or a mixture of plain velvet or satin.

Silk plush has a new lease of favor both for the costume and for wraps and millinery purposes. The new plushes appear not alone with the velvet-like and furry surfaces of former seasons, but in imitation of various fur skins, and also in gold-threaded and moss-like effects glittering with metallic spirals and shining tufts of gold and silver. Handsome Roman plushes are also seen with broad stripes in rich vivid colors, besides many "long nap" plushes in every conceivable shade, some of them covered with a frost-like vitrification made to resemble beading.

One of the richest skirt fronts yet imported, and designed for the front of a white velvet bridal dress, has the entire piece covered with massive white roses and buds and white crystallized snowdrops. The embroidery is executed in pure white silk, but over it is a dense covering of colorless crystals, pearls, and white cut pendants, some of which are pressed and forming the stamens and petals. Large seed pearls form the flower petals and buds, and the grasses and foliage are filled in with milk-white pearl beads. Over the roses glitter simulated drops of dew formed of the merest flecks of crystal. The entire train is and vest to correspond form a wondrous and artistic piece of colorless shading in white, from dead ivory to creamy-pearl, most beautiful to see.

In fancy goods of silk and wool are shown some very bright fabrics, which bear a close resemblance to the pretty Watteau and Pompadour batistes worn last summer. These new materials are to be made up in conjunction with serges, vigognes, camel's-hair goods, and the like. There is also, by way of novelty, a woollen moire in all the dark shades of green, brown, wine, etc., that promises to become quite popular as a dress trimming. India brocade in gay shawl designs is also revived for trimming and accessories both for visiting and in-door costumes.

Rough, shaggy boucles, Scotch basket cloths, and other heavy materials in mixed "heather" colors, shot with gold, are this season made into very stylish and distinguished-looking remisards, or long French travelling cloaks thus named. These find ready sale with ladies who are given to unique styles in dress. They are both rich and comfortable-looking, as they are long enough to envelop the entire form. Plush, plain or striped, lines the garments throughout, and bands of dark astrakhan or fur eight inches wide are used to trim. A very deep collar to match is added, and the wrap is fastened down the front with heavy silk cords and pendant ornaments.

White watered silk dresses cut in princesse style slightly trained and occasionally laced down the back are fashionable dresses for bridesmaid wear. White Bengaline with panels, vests, and sashes of white satin striped with plush, with hat and plumes to correspond, is another popular dress for a group of bridesmaids. A less expensive toilet, also appropriate for wedding occasions, is one of plain white gros grain, with a tiny pleating around the plain demi-trained skirt and a long drapery of white lace flouncing sewed on the edge of a very small overdress made of diagonal folds of the silk. The sleeves to the bodice are short and the front is cut in Zouave fashion over a dainty waistcoat of lace fastened with small Rhine-stone buttons, with belt clasp at the waist of silver in filigree set with the same stones.

A Parisian reception-gown exhibited by a Broadway importer is made of heavy Lyons satin of a pale lilac shade brocaded with full blown bunch roses with drooping buds and foliage of delicate gold. The embossed flowers and foliage are exquisitely tinted and blended. The Josephine corsage is veiled with a bertha of real point lace and the train, which is nearly three yards long, is untrimmed; the skirt front partly discovers a petticoat of violet velvet trimmed with bands of costly embroidery in pearl, heliotrope, and opal beads; these bands forming stripes down the skirt front.

The soft, gracefully draping cashmere goods, dear to the hearts of all French women, never go wholly out of fashion, especially for dressy afternoon toilets for home wear. The invoice of these materials is uncommonly large this season, the range including patterns in deep, rich, winter tones, in non chrome or tufted, brocaded in small dots, single flowers, and other figures in deeper or contrasting colors. Some of the hand-loomed goods which come in boxes have several yards of combination material, in brilliant Oriental designs, to be made up in conjunction with the plain cashmere. These are mostly used for elaborate house robes, matinées, and princesse morning gowns. Earlier less expensive and quite as effective toilets, however, may be made of the plain goods bought by the yard, with an additional purchase of remnants of striped or figured cashmere. Many houses in the city are now selling an excellent quality of double-width cashmere in plain colors, dark or light, for forty-nine and seventy-five cents a yard. Plain velvet is much used this year as a trimming for all light wool fabrics, and graceful ribbon decorations are usually added. For evening wear very light colors are preferred—in shades of almond, tea rose, ciel blue, heliotrope, beige, cream, and pale amber. There is great variety in the formation of these dainty home dresses, some being made in simple severe tailor style, with long simple overdresses, looped high and full in the back, with a plain glove-fitting basque, their only ornament a braided cutaway, vest, and cuffs, very narrow gold braid being a favorite trimming. More elaborate dresses have the entire fronts of bodice and skirt veiled with wool lace. Imported toilets of this sort show skirts of velvet finished around the bottom with a simple box-pleating of the same. Above is a very simple overpoloaise of the pale cashmere, fitting like a glove, and buttoned down the back. Zouave jackets of velvet, matched to the skirt, are worn above, or dretelles sharply pointed front and back enrich the waist portions. Golden brown plush or velvet is more used than any color, dark or brilliant Coquelicot red being a second choice. Moire Francaise skirts are also seen, and in this case the back of the princesse polonaise is finished with an immense Louise Quinze sash drapery of wide moire ribbon four and one quarter yards long and tied in long loops and ends which cover the entire skirt in the back.

A very handsome dinner dress made by Pingat is composed of golden-brown satin, velvet, and broche in a design of gold, amber, and amaranth red. The velvet train is trimmed at the foot with a rose pleating of the same good-faced with amber satin. A tablier of the brocade has the designs outlined with gold, ruby, and golden-brown beads. Falling above this, and partly concealing the tablier, is a Grecian drapery of the satin which is caught up high on the left hip, with an antique clasp of gold set with mock gems matching the glittering reflections of the beads. The corsage of velvet is shaped in the back, underneath which are set special beaded ornaments made to fit the V-shaped openings. The Stuart collar of velvet is faced with brocade and garnished with bead embroidery. A double revers of beaded velvet and brocade passes on each side of the front of the corsage, which is closed with small jewelled buttons.

It is quite fashionable to put a glittering aigrette in the coiffure when it is arranged high upon the head. Both real and artificial flowers are again worn in the hair, and with the new basket plaits a high Spanish comb is again made use of, the top set with Irish diamonds, with full evening dress. This comb is often set sideways, in the coquettish manner that becomes some women, while it makes others appear very ridiculous. With certain graces of person and manner certain styles visibly agree, but for the tall, majestic woman, of slow speech and dignified bearing, to attempt to adopt the chic dress and the childish vagaries of a petite coquette, would be nothing but a humiliating burlesque. Each style has its special and distinct charm, and as tastes differ very considerably, each is sure to find its special and peculiar admirers. It is well therefore for a woman, in her dress and its accessories, to be content with a style becoming to her, only striving to see that she makes the best of it, to perfect in its own special form as possible, refining and improving whenever the need of such process is made apparent to her.

THE BEST & SAFEST LAMP EVER MADE.

CAN NOT EXPLODE IF YOU TRY.

BURNS LIKE, BUT BETTER THAN GAS, GIVING A Brilliant and Wonderful Large Light, MUCH BETTER THAN ANY THREE CHIMNEY LAMPS COMBINED.

Table Lamp.

Bracket Lamp.

Saves all Expense and Annoyance of Chimneys.

This is a forced blast Lamp, controlled by the springs "A A" which is wound by the key "B" on side. "C" arrows showing passage of air from bottom to top of Lamp. "DD" fan which is driven by a wheel shaped on an improved principle, forces the air through the Lamp to the point of combustion. "E" "F" "G" and "H" are brass cog wheels, which are the only ones used in the movement. The oil well is entirely separate from the outside of the Lamp, and is kept continually cool by the cold blast of air constantly circulating, rendering the Lamp positively non-explosive. The flame can be turned very low, without a particle of smoke or odor, which cannot be done by any other Lamp. The Lamp, with ordinary wind, will burn for 12 hours and the mechanism will run over 20 hours, giving a brilliant uniform light, equal to gas. Every part of this Lamp interchangeable, and can be supplied at small expense. Flame in cut shows less than half size of full flame.

Made of Brass, Elaborately Nickeled, in Stand Lamps, Bracket, or Hanging Style. Also to attach to Chandelier.

BE SURE TO INVESTIGATE THIS WONDERFUL, SAFE AND CHEAP LAMP.

My representative, who is now travelling through Maine, for the purpose of establishing Agencies for each county, will be pleased to show this Lamp to all who are interested. Remember this is one of the few articles of merit, having no competition whatever, that is offered to Agents.

My representative will be at Portland, Preble House, Nov. 21, 22, 23, 24; Biddeford, Nov. 25, 26; Bath, Nov. 27, 28; Wiscasset, Nov. 30; Rockland, Dec. 1, 2; Belfast, Dec. 3, 4, 5; Bangor, Bangor House, Dec. 7, 8, 9; Ellsworth, Dec. 10; Calais, Dec. 11, 12; Houlton, Dec. 14, 15, 16; Skowhegan, 18, 19; Augusta, Cony House, Dec. 21, 22; Lewiston, 23, 24.

TESTIMONIALS.

4 Years Sick Cured in a Few Months.

Milltown, New Brunswick, Feb. 20, 1885.

I wish to add my testimonial to the many others you have from this section. I was sick for four years, and during that time I employed all the best physicians, China, Indian, Step medicine, in fact every patent medicine I heard of, and got no good. I had backache and kidney trouble, and could not work, so that I had to attend church in the very worst of weather. I saw your advertisement, and I am happy to state that after using your medicines I feel as sound as a dollar. MRS. WILSON LAITRE.

A Tape Worm 34 Feet Long Removed.
